

Bloor Publications

Bloor Research has developed a number of different report types designed to help IT buyers make more informed decisions. These reports provide high quality independent collateral for you, as IT vendors, and can be leveraged to more effectively position your solution within the context of a business need or the market you compete in.

Most of our publications are sold with full internal and external reprint rights. We offer the following packages to help you make best use of your available budget

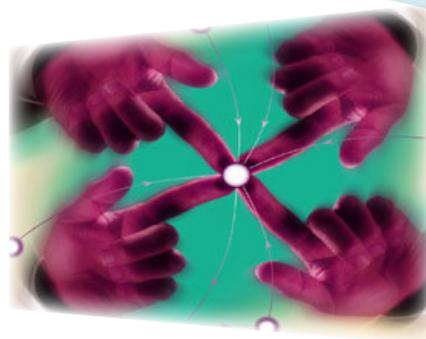

Reprint Rights: gives the vendor the right to use our reports for internal communication and education, and as external collateral for the sales team, events and tactical marketing programmes.

Bespoke Report: we can tailor our reports and papers (provided they remain unbiased) to provide you with a bespoke version that better fits your marketing plan and sales messages.

Report Pack: gives you a combination of Reprint Rights and a bespoke Product Evaluation, usually in the context of the paper you wish to license, so there are two pieces of collateral which can be used in combination or separately.

Subscription: allows you to take advantage of our entire research library, and includes: reprint rights to all our publications, a bespoke Product Evaluation of at least 2500 words and Analyst Time to assist you, including helping you better understand and utilise the Bloor library.

Analyst Time: by working closely with our analysts you can gain considerably more leverage and value from the Bloor publications. The areas of assistance can include: a product review, which audits your product within its market context; identification of business needs and competition; competitive positioning to identify where and how you can most effectively position your products; sales education, for instance in repackaging and delivering content to sales, pre-sales and marketing personnel.
